Happy Friday!

Another busy and exciting week of learning at Signal Hill! Ms. Rempel’s K/1 class has been busy creating up a storm with their boxes. They each chose a box and created it into something new and wonderful. There was glitter, paint, tape, and glue spilling out of the corners. The students were so proud of their creations and took their boxes on parade to show off their creativity.

The grade 6/7 French Immersion students completed and submitted their Remembrance Day poetry, art and essays to the Royal Canadian Legion. This is a contest that happens every year and the winning students are awarded cash prizes.

The grade 4/5/6 students all began the Our School survey this week and will continue this into next week. This is a survey with a variety of questions about leisure activities, healthy eating, school attitudes and other information that helps provide data to better understand what is going well at our school as well as areas of growth. It’s very valuable information that comes right from our own students that we use to plan for the future.

We continue to work on our school value of courage. Students are showing many ways that they can have courage with themselves, with others and this place. Each time a staff member sees one of our students having courage they are given a green card. We are keeping track of these green cards by giving one jelly bean in a jar for each green card. Come see our jelly bean jar in the foyer and watch as it fills up. Once it’s full, we are having a whole school reward.

Have a wonderful weekend!
